

Nedelja, 12. julij: – Minulo nedeljo nas je Jezus povabil, naj pridemo k njemu, ker bomo pri njem našli in prejeli mir in uteho. Jezus nam te dobrote podarja po svoji besedi in milosti. Danes nam pove, da so njegove besede kot seme, ki ga mnogokrat ne opazimo. Toda, ko seme vzklije, raste, obrodi sad. Mnogokrat izgleda, kot da seme propade, umre. Če so pravi pogoji bo vzkliko, rastlo in obrodilo. Te potrebne pogoje pripravljamo tako, da poslušamo, sprejemamo ter uresničujemo Jezusove besede, molimo in tako delamo za rast Božjega kraljestva med nami. Naša lepa, dobra in spodbudna beseda je kot seme v dobri zemlji.

The parable speaks of a sower. His activity is marked by the contrast between the loss of the seeds and the abundant fruit. Furthermore, we need to note the difference between the wealth of the description of those who lose the seeds and the concise form of the abundant fruit. But the number of failed and disappointing experiences represented by the various forms of loss of seeds (on the edge of the path...on patches of rock... among thorns...) is contrasted with the great harvest that makes us forget the negative experiences of the losses. Again, in the parable there is the time difference between the initial phase of the sowing and the end phase which coincides with the fruit of the harvest. If in the various attempts at sowing there is no fruit, such lack brings to mind the Kingdom of God at the time of the great harvest. Jesus, the sower, sows the word of the kingdom which makes present the lordship of God over the world, over people and that bears the final fruit. The parable has such persuasive force as to bring the listener to trust in the works of Jesus, which, while marked by failure or disappointment, will finally succeed.
